The Run

Hot, Hot and Hot. The temperature reading on the dashboard read 37°C. The parking was just after the sharp left hand bend under the trees offering a little shade with the beer truck just before and opposite the turn off to the golf and country club. Parking was limited so another line in the middle of the road was added.

On On was bang on 6pm with a slog up the hill in the sun until we reached the fence (where the paper started) above the Hash House Heritage site – which is no longer accessible – where the trail cut into the forest. There must have been at least six other hash chapter papers there, so this is really becoming a prostituted area. However once or twice a year seems about okay for a change and often a good run can still be had.

The Hare took us across the forest and down past the other car parking area and straight to a longish first check. This was a back check which was quickly broken up the hill to another trail. This carried on through good running paths albeit with a need to watch ones step with tree roots being the main obstacle; that and a lot of small ups and downs. The second check was a forward check which was broken before I got there. The trail wound round the usual areas ending on a fairly steep up and over to the well-used pedestrian road that loops round the area. Several of the pack could be seen milling about looking at the home direction while the hard and fast went down to the other side of the forest in the usual clockwise loop.

The Circle

The pack tucked into the beers as soon as the first runner came in at 7.10 and they went fast. Luckily the Hare provided the 2 cases fine from last week, and a case of Makoli which disappeared double quick. The Guinness bar was also opened about 7.50 with only one runner still out: Dennis Khoo. Unfortunately no-one knew at the time that he had had a nasty fall.

The Butler for today was Bandaraya, who kindly volunteered to give the others a bit of a break and was given a beer and a good song. The Hares were next as the food was being set up behind us, with the aroma of the rather fragrant kimchi dishes wafting into the circle. A good run was called out so the Hare got the piss pan and a good song.

On Cash Russell got up on the box modelling the Hash Shirt freebee that the pack would get if they joined in for the joint run with Singapore this coming Saturday. He also mentioned to keep the subs coming even though he was going to be away for the next couple of weeks. And with that news he received the ditty that everyone sang with gusto.

InterhashSec was next with his announcement encouraging Mother Hashers to run on other chapters to promote the 80th anniversary run and therefore spread the word about signing up for the event.

Seven guests came up including, Greg Dhall (ex-member) and son, but only one of them mentioned an unmentionable word and so got a suitable down down. It seems the rest wised up quickly. Returnees Billabong and Ah Kah were then asked to explain themselves and received a beer for their troubles.

The Bomoh for the evening was Orange who stated his fine run would be in the same place as last time but a better run. First he called on Dennis Khoo and Mountain Goat for directing traffic as if they were the police, but as Dennis was still in the forest, a lookalike Bull Ong was called up instead. Then Hardy and Bull were called up again for more things to do with cars. Perhaps it was because Dennis had arrived in his rebuilt Mini Cooper which drew a crowd.

On Sec then called Steve Leong for hanging around unmentionables toilets in Sungai Buloh looking for fish. Then Steve called on Taiwan Yu for mentioning an unmentionable name of the Taiwanese president.

With the beer having mostly run out and Melaka Teh moving towards the food, the pack obviously wanted to get on with dinner so the hare, Jin, came up to mention it was all FOC as the pack tucked in.

About this time Mathew drove up to look for Dennis who was still out in the forest. Eventually he was found in quite a bit of pain, but a beer often helps with this. Then we discovered that On Cash had accidentally left with Dennis' car keys; however, this was no problem for Mother members hotwiring his car to get back home.

Thanks Jin for a good run and a very popular free Dinner. Another excellent Monday evening!
